Mr. Burke move that she house should Mr. Burke move that she house should be consider the vote of yesterday, not to eccede from their disagreement to the armendment proposed by the senate to the bill for allowing compensations to the members and officers of both houses.

Mr. Madjon superflow that the bill mailed by the vote of yesterday, queried wither it was in order th reconsidered that vote; or whether such a vote could be said to resort to the bill. The affirmative of this enquiry, he consived, inwoived many difficulties: It would extend to repealing the laws, as well as to required by the constitution, which are required by the constitution, which are required by the constitution. Mr. Sherman, Mr. Gerry, and Mr. Lawrence, observed, that the bill could nut be considered as loft, at the house had directed the clerk to inform the second.

nut be confidered as loft, as the house had directed the clerk to inform the period and of what had taken place; the senate of what had taken place; the senate being adjourned, their opinion could not be known. The bill and the vote were still in nossification of the house; nor could there be a doubt that the law, if now completed by a concurrence in the amendment of the Senate, would not be as valid as ony law that had been enacted.
